Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

THERE have been three kidnaping-holdups and a murder at the Fulton bridge toll-house. The obvious suggestion is that the State of Arkansas can no longer afford to leave the night gate-keeper unprotected on so lonely and dangerous a post.

NRA Is Denounced by Darrow, Head of Review Board

Administrator Johnson Strikes Back—Board to Be Dropped
HITS PRICE-FIXING
Darrow Charges Monopoly Is Hurting Small Business Units

WASHINGTON. — (AP) — President Roosevelt will permit the Darrow board, which Sunday excoriated the NRA and advocated government ownership and control of business, to go out of existence when it completes its investigation in an expected few days.

The president offered no comment Monday on the clash between the monopoly board, headed by Clarence Darrow, famous attorney, and the National Recovery Administration, headed by Hugh S. Johnson.

The Darrow group will conclude its work very quickly, thus disposing of the demand by Johnson for Darrow's resignation.

NRA Is Played
WASHINGTON. — (AP) — Clarence Darrow's review board Sunday night presented a 50,000-word critique of the National Recovery Administration, recommending a return to the anti-trust laws which were suspended for the recovery program, and terming the NRA a "monopoly" and a "political party."

Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, replied to the criticism and called the report "superficial, intemperate and inaccurate," a "political sounding board," and coupled this with a recommendation that the review board be abolished.

The board was created by President Roosevelt to determine the soundness of changes in congress and elsewhere—that little business was being discriminated against in operation of the National Recovery Administration and its codes of fair competition.

The main report was signed by Darrow, Chicago attorney, and four of the five board members. John F. Sinclair, dissident, asserting that findings of the majority were "inconclusive, incomplete and at times misleading." He recommended establishment of a permanent review board of appeal, independent of the NRA, and of a series of review boards for minor appeals within the recovery organization, itself.

Warnings of Monopoly
In a supplementary report, signed only by himself and William O. Thompson, Darrow emphasized what he termed a trend toward monopoly under the NRA.

"The choice is between monopoly sustained by government, which is clearly the trend in the National Recovery Administration and a planned economy, which demands socialized ownership and control," he wrote.

There is no hope for the small businessman or for complete recovery in America in enforced restrictions upon production for the purpose of maintaining higher prices. The hope for the American people, including the small businessman, not to be overwhelmed by their own abundance, lies in the planned use of America's resources following socialization.

"To give the question of government to sustain prices is not planned economy, but a regimented organization for exploitation."

The majority report said: "Price fixing by the industry and prior regulation by the government would involve, in our judgment, practically the same difficulties. The problem of policing the industry to prevent that price competition which the American public has long relied upon to avoid the evils of monopoly, inefficiency in business and high price levels would be insuperable."

"A return to the anti-trust laws for the purpose of restoring competition we believe to be one of the great needs of the times. These laws require clarifying and strengthening."

This, Johnson retorted, meant the choice was "between Fascism and Communism, neither of which can be espoused by anyone who believes in democratic institutions."

Favors Trade Commission
Darrow suggested that the way for the public to find out the "difficulties which arise from the position of the small man in the present stage of industrial development" was to transfer the investigatory work to the Federal Trade Commission.

Mountain Lion Is Stoned to Death by Intrepid Men

Sam McMath Sees Mexicans Rope Big Cat, Slay It With Rocks

A GORGEOUS FEAST

Here's a Baked Wild Turkey, Stuffed With Cornmeal and Chili

Editor's Note: This is the fifth in a series of twelve letters written by Sam McMath, formerly of Hope, on his experiences along the Mexican border.

Dear Mr. Norton:
Heavy work during December 1918 left me in a run down condition, and when my good amigo, Paul Edwards, invited me to visit him on his ranch in Mexico and recuperate, I gladly accepted the invitation.

I nearly always refer to El Tule as Paul's ranch. As a matter of fact, it is owned by a company composed of both Mexicans and Americans. At the time of my visit Paul was a stockholder and superintendent. With a Chinaman to do his cooking, and a body servant in constant attendance, he lived like a feudal lord.

El Tule ranch lies in the rolling foothills of the Burro mountains in northern Coahuila about 112 miles southeast of Del Rio, Texas, and comprises 200,000 acres of grazing land. It is 10 miles from Hacienda San Antonio to El Tule headquarters, and six miles from headquarters to El Campo Guajalote. All these points are on the Tule property. The big ranch house at headquarters is built of stone and contains seven rooms, including the commissary, which adjoins the kitchen.

Northern Coahuila is sparsely settled and is a sportsman's paradise. Big game is plentiful. I saw six black bear skins on the floors in the ranch house. All were killed on the Tule.

Mountain lions are a menace to the ranchmen, being very destructive to lambs, kids and young cattle. El Tule has a standing reward of 25 pesos for each lion killed.

Lion Hunters
One day two sheep herders saw a lion taking a siesta on a ledge that jutted out from the walls of a canyon. Neither man was armed, but they resolved to get the big cat. One of the men crawled up and sneaked up on a point directly above the sleeping lion. The man below cased up and poked it with a pistol. When the lion jumped, the man above reared it and held on till the other could crawl up and kill it with rocks! There was no argument about those fellows carrying the reward.

Mark Edwards, Paul's nephew, ran a line of traps while I was a guest at the Tule. He met with fair success, catching a number of wolves, foxes, skunks and one wild turkey. If you have ever eaten a baked wild turkey stuffed with dressing made of fresh corn meal grown by hand in a metate, and flavored with oregana and chili petin, you may rest assured that life has been hiding out on you.

One day while hunting, I ran across Felipe Arredondo, the ranch freighter, skimming a fox near one of Mark's traps. I knew Felipe had stolen that fox although he claimed he had killed it with a rock. It was the law of the ranch that if an employee was caught stealing anything, no matter how trivial, he was to be immediately discharged. Perhaps I should have reported the theft of the fox skin; but I hated to be the cause of the poor devil losing his job. Had I been an employer instead of a visitor, my attitude would have been different. Anyway, I didn't report it.

All the rest of that day Felipe hovered around and watched me like a cat watching a bird. Early next morning when Paul ordered him to get ready for a trip to Allende, he shot me a brief, grateful glance. He knew I hadn't told him.

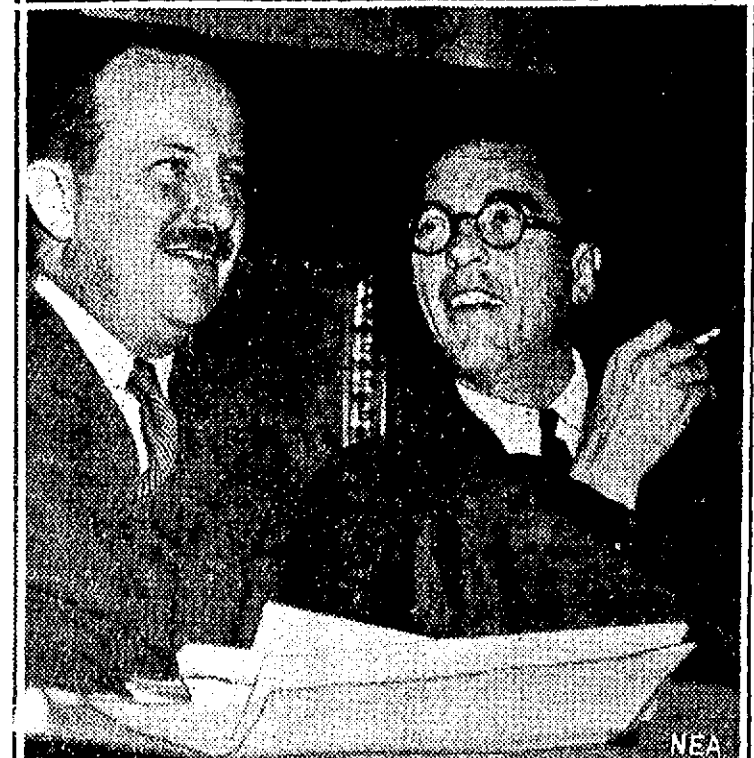

Gets Reward
A round trip to Allende requires five days, two days on the road each way, and one day for loading and resting the team. On the fifth day after Felipe's departure, I was out hunting again. When I heard a wagon clattering down the hill I stepped into the road to see who was coming. It was Felipe. When he saw me he halted his team and shouted: "Señor Mikey, I have a present for you."

"Mikey" was about as near as he "uh" came to pronouncing my name. He jumped down off his seat, untied some ropes, and dragged forth a stalk of sugar cane. He had paid five pesos for it in Allende, and hauled it 55 miles to reward me for not snitching.

Mark moved his traps to Hacienda San Antonio. Paul made a business trip to Eagle Pass, Texas, and for three days I was alone. True, the Chinaman and a few men employed

Talk Business? Not These Two

That he would have "thrown overboard" any one on his yacht who had tried to talk business with President Roosevelt during their recent cruise, was the statement made by Vincent Astor (right) when, as shown here, he testified with Kermit Roosevelt (left) before the Senate committee investigating ocean and air mail contracts. Kermit, son of the late president, was reported to have discussed the affairs of the International Marine Corporation, of which he is vice president.

Attack on Taylor Bondsmen Beaten

Supreme Court Rules Against Prosecutor Bailey in Lawsuit

LITTLE ROCK. — (AP) — The Arkansas Supreme Court Monday held, with Chief Justice Johnson dissenting, that the bondsmen of former Bank Commissioner Walter E. Taylor were not liable for the disbursement of salary to himself in excess of the constitutional limit of $5,000.

Prosecuting Attorney Carl E. Bailey had sued in Pulaski circuit court to recover from Taylor $2,125 representing his salary as manager of the building loan division of the department, which was in addition to his $3,000 salary as bank commissioner.

The court held that the legislature appropriated for Taylor's alleged excess salary, and that his bondsmen covered only disbursements of an illegal nature.

Other cases included the Mutual Life Insurance company vs. Joe H. Dowdle, Conway circuit clerk, which was affirmed.

Chicago Yards Are Swept by Big Fire

10 Millions' Damage Greatest Since Historic Fire of 1871

CHICAGO. — (AP) — Chicago's most disastrous fire since the holocaust of 1871 wiped out 12 square blocks of Packingtown property over the week-end with an estimated loss of 10 million dollars.

The conflagration, starting as did the historic fire of '71 in the stock yards area, raged uncontrolled for four and a half hours.

Every available piece of fire fighting equipment in the city, more than 150 trucks, was rushed to the area. Firemen off duty and on vacation were hurriedly summoned. Three hundred policemen commanded by 25 captains and under the supervision of Police Commissioner James Allman marshalled the huge crowds of curious which flocked to the area out of the fire fighters' way.

Despite their wide sweep, the flames did not attack any of the major companies' plants. They were located in a westerly direction from the fire which started near the western limits of the mile-square yards, apparently from a carelessly tossed cigarette.

City Fire Attorney Thomas J. Sheehan and others carried on investigations to determine the cause of the blaze.

Sheehan said that he was convinced from his preliminary investigation that the fire was accidental and not set.

"We investigated reports that there had been labor agitation in the yards but we were unable to find any evidence of any recent labor troubles. We did not find anything to lead us to believe the fire was not accidental, probably started from a carelessly tossed match or cigarette."

About 1,500 persons received treatment for injuries. Some 400 required hospital treatment. Most of the injured were firemen.

Penitentiary Is to Purchase Mules

Penal Board Arranges $35,000 Loan for Crop Production

LITTLE ROCK. — (AP) — The State Penal Board Monday executed contracts necessary to obtain a $35,000 loan for crop production purposes at the state prison farms this year.

One of the chief items includes the purchase of mules, lack of which seriously handicapped spring planting.

The board is negotiating with the Simmons National Bank, Pine Bluff, to handle the financing.

Great Increase in Drinking, Is Claim

W. C. T. U. Reports "Startling Gain" Since Advent of Repeal

EVANSTON, Ill. — (AP) — A survey of America since repeal of prohibition, the National Women's Christian Temperance Union announced, over the week-end "startling increases" in drunkenness.

"The W. C. T. U. in the current issue of its Union Signal says it has gone to court records around the country for signs of the effect of repeal and had found in most places an increase in 'unmistakable drunkenness' that broke even pre-prohibition records."

"Tabulated figures showing increases as compared with early months of 1933 were given as follows: New York City, 55.5 per cent; St. Louis, 23.5 per cent; Los Angeles, 65.5; Minneapolis, 16.2 per cent; Boston, 21.4; Denver, 116.6; Portland, Oregon, 116.8; Duluth, 68.4; Worcester, Mass., 54.0 and Roswell, N. M., tallied 149 reported cases of intoxication during 1933 as compared with 58 in 1932."

"The increase of drunkenness in Cincinnati," the W. C. T. U. said, "since the first of the year has caused the city officials some great concern, according to press reports. The records show that city hospitals admitted 218 patients suffering from alcoholism during January and February, 1934, as compared with 120 such cases for the same period last year."

Vaccine Urged to Check "Black Leg"

County Agent Stanley Warns Farmers to Protect Livestock

Every man who is raising cattle should vaccinate for blackleg, according to Frank R. Stanley, county agent, who said that city hospitals admitted 218 patients suffering from alcoholism during January and February, 1934, as compared with 120 such cases for the same period last year.

The report showed: Works Division, 8 men; P. W. A. jobs, none; private jobs, none; 150, women, 61, veterans, 5, total, 219.

3 Negroes Grilled in Fulton Murder Shed Little Light

Officers Believe Williams Slain by Local Holdup Men

PISTOL IN EVIDENCE

.38 Calibre Gun Sent to Little Rock for Expert Examination

The number of suspects held for the gruesome murder of Glenn L. Williams, 39-year-old Fulton toll bridge keeper, who was shot death early Saturday by a mysterious gunman, was reduced to three Monday as officers continued their investigation to bring about an early solution of the crime.

The three suspects held are negroes. They are Andrew Smith, Moten Hill and Drew Williams, all of the Red Lake area near Fulton, with criminal records behind them.

Smith served time for killing a negro at Fulton several years ago. He has been arrested several times on liquor violations. It was at Smith's home that officers discovered a .38 calibre, believed to be the one fired by Williams' slayer. The barrel had been freshly cleaned.

The bullet taken from the slain toll keeper's body was fired from a .38 pistol. Officers prepared Monday to send the gun to a ballistic expert.

A fourth negro, believed to be the driver of the automobile seen near the Fulton bridge a few minutes before Williams was killed and then abandoned later on the road near this city, is sought by officers.

In Hope Saturday
After questioning Sunday night the negroes held in jail admitted being in Hope the morning of the killing, which occurred between 2:30 and 3 a. m. The negroes were reported sighted here about 3:30. No information offering a direct solution of the crime has been obtained from them officers said.

Smith is held in a Hempstead county jail. Williams and Hill are held at Texarkana in separate cells.

Information officers have obtained have caused them to discount a theory that Williams was shot by some widely publicized desperado after the gatekeeper recognized him.

Williams was shot, Chief of Police Clarence Baker believes, as he resisted an attempt at a bandit to rob the toll house.

He was found lying face downward on a porch of the bridge cottage after staggering from the toll house to notify L. E. Quinn, another collector of toll fees. The gunman took only $4.50. Officers believe he was frightened away after firing the gun.

Glenn Williams Buried
Funeral services for Mr. Williams were conducted from the W. L. Purkins home, East Second street, at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The services were in charge of the Rev. E. Clifton Rice, pastor of First Methodist church.

Burial was in Rose Hill cemetery. Masonic rites were held at the grave. Active pallbearers B. L. Kaufman, L. A. Carlson, O. L. Wyatt, Harvey Betts, Dr. A. J. Neighbors, W. M. Ramsey, Ira Halliburton, Andy Waggoner.

Honorary pall bearers Dr. P. B. Carrigan, A. C. Moreland, Curtis Cannon, T. P. Boyett, R. A. Boyett, Claud Agge, Roy Anderson, L. E. Quinn and T. M. Healey of Little Rock.

30 Leave Relief for Private Jobs
Employment Officer Bert Keith Makes Encouraging Report

Removal of 30 men from the emergency relief rolls and placing them on private jobs, was among the activities of the federal re-employment office last week, a report submitted Monday by Bert Keith, re-employment officer, showed.

The 30 men had been drawing $276.20 monthly from the federal government.

The report showed: Works Division, 8 men; P. W. A. jobs, none; private jobs, none; 150, women, 61, veterans, 5, total, 219.

Placement from relief rolls: Works division, men 8; women, none; veterans, 2; P. W. A. jobs, none.

WASHINGTON. — (AP) — A bomb concealed in a package exploded in the dead-letter office of the Post-office Department Monday shattering the hand of Myron L. Gernong, clerk, who was examining it.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — (AP) — Riots broke out again early Monday in the market district and eight policemen and ten strikers fell as 300 pickets and nearly 100 special policemen clashed over a movement of trucks.

TYLER, Texas. — (AP) — Five persons were killed and a sixth was injured seriously near here Monday when a truck hit a narrow bridge and went off a 30-foot embankment.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — (AP) — An attempt was made Monday to destroy the DeBardeleben Coal corporation mine when a bomb was thrown down an airshaft. The shaft was not seriously damaged.

Cow on Pavement Wrecks Hope Car
Jimmy Fields Breaks Arm in Smash on Paved Fulton Highway

Several persons were injured, none seriously, in a series of Sunday automobile accidents in and around Hope. Jimmy Fields, Hope taxi driver, sustained a fractured right arm, cuts and bruises and abrasions on the face and body, when his automobile struck a cow roaming the paved Fulton highway near Sheppard about 9 o'clock Sunday night.

Fields, driving alone, was en route to Hope. He was thrown through the windshield from the impact. His car, a Ford sedan, was badly damaged. A Hope Furniture company ambulance was called, but Fields was brought to Hope by a passing motorist.

Emmett Whitten, his wife and two children, were shocked and bruised in an automobile collision at Third and Pine streets about 6:30 Sunday night.

A second car, occupied by two men from Camden whose names were not learned, smashed into the intersection of the two streets. Both cars were damaged. Whitten is plan superintendent of Hope Basket factory.

A third accident occurred on a road leading to Red Lake, near Fulton. Mr. and Mrs. B. Springs and Mr. and Mrs. Gerald McLarty were en route to the lake on a fishing trip Sunday morning when their car was struck by an automobile driven by R. H. Sutton of Dallas.

Occupants of the Springs car were bruised and scratched. Sutton escaped injury.

The Springs car was struck from the rear when Sutton, driving a high rate of speed, attempted to pass. The jolt overturned the Springs car. It was badly damaged.

No Debt Legislation
No legislation is to be asked on the war debt problem at this time, but the message is expected to inform congress of the situation, which may become more acute on June 15 if the foreign debtors fail to pay installments due then.

A vote by the end of the week on the administration's reciprocal tariff bill appears certain in the senate. The house takes up send approved measures authorizing loans to industries through the RFC, extending the temporary bank deposit insurance plan a year, and creating a separate commission to regulate communication systems.

Fascist State Set Up for Bulgarians

16 State Districts Are Consolidated to 7 by New Rulers

Copyright, Associated Press
SOFIA, Bulgaria. — (AP) — Leaders of the coup d'etat by which the army took control of the nation, worked behind a ring of machine guns and bayonets Sunday to set up a new government.

Controlling affairs was Kimon Guerchieff, 52-year-old premier appointed by King Boris after the army's swift seizure of authority.

Sofia resumed its normal aspects Sunday, only occasionally did military patrols march through the streets and there was no disorder.

It was learned that the new government will take a long step toward Fascism with King Boris co-operating wholeheartedly. The new government will be a compromise between Fascism and the parliamentary system.

A new legislative body will have 100 members instead of the 274 of the old Sabor, dissolved by decree. Seventy-five members will be appointed and 25 elected, under a plan which will give the central government firm control. Political subdivisions are being reduced in number and increased in size.

Sixteen provinces will be replaced by seven administrative districts. The new divisions will divide the Macedonian county of Futridit, which has been a hotbed of revolutionary activity. With the government frankly anti-Macedonian, Petritich territory will be divided between Sofia and Plovdiv provinces.

Norris Proposal to Abolish It Is Beaten by Senate

Turn Down Amendment for Direct Election of President
DELAY SILVER BILL
Roosevelt Not to Give Congress Message Until Tuesday

WASHINGTON. — (AP) — The senate Monday refused to submit to the states the Norris constitutional amendment to abolish the Electoral College and provide for the direct election of the president and vice-president.

With a two-thirds vote necessary, the amendment was defeated 42 to 24.

Senator Norris, author of the proposal, changed his vote before the decision was announced, and entered a motion for reconsideration, thus permitting him to bring the matter up for another test later.

Submission of the president's silver message to congress was postponed until Tuesday for a final checkup on details with Treasury aides.

The president had ready Monday his message endorsing a mandatory proposal to make silver a definite part of the metallic base for American currency.

The senate agricultural committee approved a bill authorizing the appropriation of 100 million dollars to finance agencies established by the Secretary of Agriculture for the handling, insuring, or marketing, of any cotton the government's possession or control.

Message on Silver
WASHINGTON. — (AP) — President Roosevelt will send to congress Monday a message asking for legislation to help silver. It will be the first of four communications on important issues to be dispatched to Capitol Hill before adjournment early in June.

The others will deal with a request for a study of social legislation needs, a report on war debts, and a recommendation on the coconut oil taxes recently imposed on the Philippines.

The president worked on his silver message on a week-end cruise down the Potomac. He is expected to recommend a mandatory declaration of policy that silver be added to the metallic monetary reserve until it attains a 25-75 ratio with gold.

In his move for a study of social legislation needs by a joint congressional committee, the president will propose to a certain extent demands for immediate enactment of the 30-hour work week, old age pension and unemployment insurance bills. While he is in favor of unemployment insurance and other social legislation, the president is reported to believe a thorough study of all these questions should be made before congress enacts mandatory legislation.

No Debt Legislation
No legislation is to be asked on the war debt problem at this time, but the message is expected to inform congress of the situation, which may become more acute on June 15 if the foreign debtors fail to pay installments due then.

A vote by the end of the week on the administration's reciprocal tariff bill appears certain in the senate. The house takes up send approved measures authorizing loans to industries through the RFC, extending the temporary bank deposit insurance plan a year, and creating a separate commission to regulate communication systems.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

By RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—The first big New Deal battleground will be found in Missouri, now that ex-Senator James A. Reed is going to seek nomination and election again.

Reed is first of the once important Old Deal Democrats to expose himself to the voters on an anti-New Deal platform. Outspoken against the Roosevelt policies, he has been in a class with Al Smith, Senator Carter Glass, John W. Davis, and Governor Ely of Massachusetts.

Reports differ as to the chances that the baleful, white-haired 72-year-old war horse has for a comeback. Reed has always been closely associated with Boss Tom Pendergast's powerful machine in Kansas City and retains a popular following through the state.

Whether the Pendergast machine is now a Roosevelt candidate is uncertain, especially since Senator Bennett Clark has advanced his own pro-administration candidate—Congressman Tuck Milligan.

But Reed is so angry and disgusted at the progressive, experimental trend in Washington that he is even willing to run as an independent and may not enter the August primaries. He is chiefly anxious to roar his protests—and hopes for the chance to echo them from the Senate floor.

Roosevelt sentiment is so strong in Missouri that Senator Roscoe Patterson, Republican incumbent up this year, has been considered ripe for the skids.

He might win, however, if Reed ran on a third ticket.

One Tip That Cashed In
Dr. Cary T. Grayson, once physician to Woodrow Wilson and now a political power and prominent horseman in this area, walked into the White House press room and offered a sure-fire race tip on his horse, Scotch Queen.

The odds were 3 to 1 as correspondents started telephoning bookmakers and their friends. The tip was passed to the Senate and House press galleries, all that newspapers offices, and the departmental press rooms around town.

Scotch Queen won. But so many newspapermen jumped on the raft that the odds were forced down until she paid only $2.50 on a $2 ticket.

Why Johnson Hushed
Behind various inside stories as to why General Johnson didn't make his scheduled speech in Detroit, but was persuaded to hold it for Columbus, is the real explanation.

Dr. Leo Wolman, head of the automobile labor board at Detroit, didn't want his boss to come. The board's troubles with belligerent workers had provided a delicate situation.

Wolman felt that one of Johnson's famous bristling speeches would be about the worst thing that could happen. It might make both sides sore and couldn't possibly do any good.

Wolman quietly spread the idea around. Strong, successful representations were made to Johnson.

Tout Edge as G. O. P. Guide
The Republican party's dilemma over its national chairmanship is likely to be solved by selection of ex-Senator Walter E. Edge of New Jersey. One large and essential reason is that Edge has plenty of money. Another is that Edge, whom Hoover made an ambassador to France, also has certain prestige and hasn't any outstanding weakness or many enemies.

He is not popularly associated with the retired Republican Old Guard, as Jim Watson of Indiana is, and is abler than Theodore Roosevelt, Jr.

"Ghosts" Harass Landis
The next Congress will contain a playwright of Fred Landis of Indiana can persuade enough voters. He is a former congressman and a brother of Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis of Chicago, the baseball czar, and has just been nominated by Republicans against Congressman George R. Dur-

gan. Fred Landis is author of a successful play, "The Copperhead," and has been a radio columnist.

His chief handicap seems to be the fact that when he ran in 1928 and 1932 for the G. O. P. gubernatorial nomination, he had many perfectly awful things about Republicans then in office.

Excavators at Anzio, a sea shore town on the Italian coast, south of Rome unearthed a luxurious sea villa belonging to Nero, the emperor.

When Holland had completed her work of draining the Zuyder Zee, she will have added 550,000 acres, or the equivalent of 10,000 farms to her area.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Why Give "First Born" All the Attention?—Let Other Children Receive Same Amount of Affection

"The top layer spoils the rest of the cake."

How true about children! The first child, Thomas, we'll say, comes along and he is this and that. The family stands around and dotes and whatever he chooses to do is just about perfect.

Maybe he's a little devil, but his impishness is put down to cuteness. Gramma and Grampa say he has "spirit" and Mother and Dad know he's going to make his fortune. A go-getter, a shover, a get-out-of-my-way sort of lad.

Then enters Brudie into the picture. Little Brudie is mild, sweet, sensitive and slow. In school he takes to books. At home he takes to books. He likes to play alone. He likes to sleep.

Perhaps they are "escapes" from big bulky brother, or perhaps they're just "Brudie."

At any rate he is as different from the "top layer" as a deep mountain pool is different from the Niagara Rapids.

Family Predictions
Then watch Gramma and Grampa and Mother and Dad go into a huddle about him. What's going to happen? Why can't he be like that paragon, his brother True, he studies more, but then, look at Tom. Tom is so smart he doesn't have to study. Brudie is going to be a slow plodder, always under somebody's thumb, a back-seat traveler, going where the bus goes, a fellow that has to stand twice to make a shadow.

Around the corner lives Norbert, just Thomas's age.
Norbert came first, too. Around his crib gathered all the older generations to admire the first baby.
"He's so sweet," said Norbert's great-uncle. He has the most wistful eyes I ever saw.

"When he cries, it would break your heart," sniffed Grandma Number One. "He's going to be a good boy and do what he's told," smiled Grandma Number Two.

He didn't disappoint anybody. He was gentle, sensitive, studious, neat and lovable. Anybody could boss him and everybody did. He was pitted and pitted and marked with "B," molded, guided, persuaded and fussed over, until today he isn't what God made him, but what ten relations and teachers have made him. A good boy! Yet under it he is exactly the same material as little Brudie around the corner.

Then Norbert's own little brother, Benny, tipped his bonnet to the world.

The "Hopeless Case"
From the first it was evident that he was no man's boy. He had a will. He did pretty much as he pleased.

As he grew, it grew plain that he was a free and independent soul known as a "hopeless case." He came in from school with his socks down, his hat lost, his face dirty, and a snag in his pants. He wouldn't study, either. Family sighs—family remarks. He never, never would be the fine little chap Norbert was.

This young "tough" was made out of the same piece as Thomas, his much-admired neighbor.

Good stuff in all of them, only different. Thomas and Norbert were older brothers, the top layer.

Why not learn to spray the same amount of icing—or affection, on each child as he comes along? The trouble is that we use too much of our interest and emotion on the first, and here isn't much left. Is it fair? All he talk of the "baby" being spoiled is so much bunk. If he is, it is not in the way we think.

OCCASIONALLY on a Saturday afternoon Mrs. Planter went to Lebanon to visit a married cousin who lived on the other side of town. The next time she spoke of paying such a visit and asked Bill if she could ride to town with him Donna found an excuse to be in the house. She was determined to search for the handbill.

She waited until Grandfather was asleep and she was sure the car might not return. Then, feeling as though she were a sneak thief, she mounted the stairs to Mrs. Planter's room. Carefully, so as not to disturb anything and give away the fact that she had been in the room, she opened all the bureau drawers, went through the pockets of every apron and dress, peered into hat boxes on the closet shelves, even flipped the pages of the few magazines and books the woman possessed. Nowhere could she find what she was searching for.

Tears of futility filled her eyes when at last she had to admit defeat and go below. As she started down the stairs, still quivering with a sense of guilt, she heard a sound that caught at her heart and caused her to pause suddenly and cling to the banisters. It was a crash as of a body falling, followed by a groan.

Only a second Donna hesitated. Then she dashed down the steps, two at a time, calling, "Grandpa! Grandpa!" Through the living room she ran and into the room that had been hers during her convalescence. The old man lay beside the bed, breathing heavily, his face flushed purple and his slight, less eyes wide and protruding with his effort to get his breath.

"Grandfather!" Donna cried, throwing herself on her knees by his side. "What is it? What happened?"

His lips parted but only a croak issued from them. There was a flutter of his eyelids but otherwise he did not move. She put strong arms under his shoulders and raised him to a sitting position. She realized he was conscious but suffering from something she did not understand.

SHE sat there with his body resting against her own, too stunned for the moment to know what to do. Obviously he was too heavy for her to lift him upon the bed. She had not the strength that at one time she had possessed. Yet she could not leave him on the floor. If only Mrs. Planter or Bill were in the house! Perhaps he had had such attacks before and they would know what to do.

The old man's breathing became more difficult and his lips were blue now. Terrified lest he should die, she gently laid his head back upon the carpet and ran into the hall to the telephone. Where could she get in touch with Bill? He had taken a load of logs to market to be shipped to Chicago and he had said something about going to a feed store but the probabilities were that he had not yet reached Lebanon.

This Ought to Rout Out Delinquent Taxpayers

Constant care is the one thing that will keep them that way.

Remember that every person should visit the dentist every six months. Let him fill the cavities, extract old roots that he feels can be treated in no other way, and finally, have him clean and polish the teeth. The last step is all important. No matter how often nor how thoroughly you brush them yourself, you cannot prevent tartar from forming and no one but a dentist can successfully remove tartar and deeply imbedded stains.

Of course, there is a great deal that you can and must do yourself. Brush your teeth at least twice a day—after each meal is better—and use dental floss several times a week. Buy your dentifrice because of its efficiency, not merely because you like the taste of it. Baking soda is an excellent cleanser.

Remember that everyone needs a good mouthwash. And one with astringent properties is especially fine.

Not only will it keep the teeth and mouth in a cleaner condition but will also prevent the gums from shrinking away from the teeth. Your dentist probably can recommend a fine one.

DONNA the BIG TOP by BEULAH POYNTER

BEHOLD HERE TODAY DONNA GABRIEL and MAD-LINE SIDDAL who call themselves "The Gabriel Sisters" are circus performers. When Donna is injured by a fall from the trapeze Madeline arranges for her to be taken to GRANDFATHER SIDDAL's farm to recuperate. To please her partner Donna pretends to be Madeline. She falls in love with BILL SIDDAL, Madeline's cousin, and though she is ashamed of deceiving him and Grandfather she is afraid to tell the truth.

Memorable Madeline marries CON DAVID, animal trainer with the circus, and takes part in the animal act. Bill and Donna are married. Mrs. Planter, housekeeper on the farm, shows Donna a handbill announcing Madeline's marriage to Con in the circus arena and Donna realizes the woman is a dangerous enemy.

In New Orleans Madeline encounters NED TRAFORD, formerly her circus enemy. She decides not to tell Con.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXII "YOU know, Honey," Bill Sidal said, struggling into his shirt and ruffling his crisp dark hair, "I've been noticing you and Mrs. Planter. She's a harmless old soul with a bark a lot worse than her bite, but I can see she gets on your nerves. If you'd like to get rid of her and have Minnie Jones come over to help you with the work I'll speak to Grandpop and I'm sure he'll agree to the change."

Donna's first reaction was one of relief. Since Mrs. Planter had shown her the circus handbill, relations between the two had been more strained than ever. Donna had made an effort to be pleasant, had tried tearfully to assume charge of the household, as befitted its mistress, but she had met sullen resentment.

But before she could agree gratefully to Bill's suggestion caution prompted a different answer.

No—so long as Mrs. Planter had that handbill in her possession Donna could not risk offending her. Consequently Mrs. Planter could not be dismissed.

"Oh, I don't mind her much," she said.

"She's a good cook," Bill agreed with relief, "and a hard worker. Minnie might not do as well."

From that hour Donna's chief thought was how to get hold of the handbill and destroy it. The slip of paper had become a menace out of all proportion to its contents. Donna dreamed about it and awoke shivering and wondering if she had talked in her sleep.

OCCASIONALLY on a Saturday afternoon Mrs. Planter went to Lebanon to visit a married cousin who lived on the other side of town. The next time she spoke of paying such a visit and asked Bill if she could ride to town with him Donna found an excuse to be in the house. She was determined to search for the handbill.

He had taken a load of logs to market to be shipped to Chicago and he had said something about going to a feed store but the probabilities were that he had not yet reached Lebanon.

What was the name of the doctor who had removed the splints from her leg? In her excitement Donna could not remember. There was a telephone book and she seized it eagerly but it gave her little information, since there was no classified section.

She flung the directory from her and jerked the receiver from the hook. The telephone was on a party line and she had to wait several seconds before a voice answered. "This is the Sidal farm," Donna said. "Mr. Sidal is very ill. Will you get hold of a doctor and send him out here right away? Any doctor—but please tell him to hurry!"

Scanning New Books

BY BRUCE CATTON

You've probably heard the old one about the gray-haired lady who presented herself at Heaven's gate and was asked by St. Peter to give an account of herself.

She was admitted the moment she said she had raised a family of five boys—the idea being that any woman who had gone through all that deserved an eternity of rest and peace.

All this has little to do with Louis Golding's new novel, "Five Silver Daughters," except that the book persuades me that raising daughters is just about as nerve-wearing a job as raising sons.

For the central figure in this book—a dreamy London Hebrew, who starts out as a tailor and winds up as a merchant prince—has five daughters, and they lead him a dizzy chase.

Sam Silver, the tailor, buys out a modest shop where he works just as it is about to go broke, and gets a partner to put him over the top.

In a decade he becomes fabulously wealthy. But the money brings him no happiness, partly because he doesn't know what to do with it, and partly because of his daughters.

One of them gets high-hat and grasping. Another marries the partner and produces seven children for the old man to speculate himself into a jam and commits suicide. The third marries a Communist and goes to Russia; the fourth becomes a flighty music hall star, and the fifth gets very soulful, stays home and goes in for good works.

All this makes an involved tale, exceedingly interesting in spots, but inclined to be a bit over-long. And it does leave you feeling sorry for old Sam Silver.

Published by Farrar and Rinehart, it sells for $2.50.

Remember—PLYMOUTH IS THE ONLY LOW-PRICE CAR WITH BOTH A SAFETY-STEEL BODY AND HYDRAULIC BRAKES

"I'm not taking any chances with my youngsters. I want to know they are safe. And they are in this Plymouth." That is what a lot of fathers and mothers tell us when they order new Plymouths.

And they are right. Plymouth's Safety-Steel Body protects your whole family. It's steel, reinforced with steel. And Hydraulic Brakes stop a car quaker—you don't skid sideways—because they take hold equally on all four wheels.

Don't you want your family to be as safe as they can possibly be? You'd better drop in and look at the new Plymouths—today. It is the only low-price car that gives you both a Safety-Steel Body and Hydraulic Brakes. And Safety Glass on the De Luxe Sedan is only $10.00 extra!

And try the 1934 Plymouth ride. Patented Floating Power and the best type of Individual Front Wheel Springing makes driving unbelievably steady and smooth. You won't believe your eyes when you see the Plymouth price tags.

Federated Clubs Begin Convention

Women's General Board Convenes Monday at Hot Springs

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—(P)—Seeking to broaden women's interest in public questions, the 16th annual meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, attended by delegates representing some 2½ million members, opened here Monday with a full week of discussion on controversial subjects before it.

Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, of Brockton, Mass., national president, inaugurated a policy to include "a full airing" of controversial national questions.

Convention Gathers
HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—With more than 200 delegates already registered and the first special train due to arrive Monday morning over the Missouri Pacific, bringing 1,000 more, the attendance at the opening session of the General Board of the General Federation of Women's Clubs here Monday afternoon, officers of the organization predicted, will greatly exceed that of last year.

Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, president, presided at a meeting of the Executive Board Sunday.

One of those present is Mrs. L. L. Blankenship, Philadelphia, wife of a former chief executive of the Quaker City. Mrs. Blankenship is 88. She is one of the founders of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. She never has missed an annual meeting of the organization and at each session has a leading part on the program. She has been given the title of the "youngest junior," and will participate in that organization's features during the week. Mrs. Blankenship addressed the Sunday school class of the First Methodist church Sunday morning as the guest of Mrs. F. M. Williams.

Mrs. Eugene B. Lawson of Tulsa, Okla., an Indian princess, who has what the Smithsonian Institute declared recently the largest and most valuable collection of Indian relics in the world, and who has given more than 30 years to the work of the General Federation of Women's Clubs until she at present is first vice president, heads the Oklahoma delegation, one of the largest to represent any state. Mrs. Lawson is a world traveler, composer and author. The Oklahoma delegation will give its state dinner Wednesday evening.

Before debate is resumed Monday on the tariff bill, already passed by the house, the senate probably will vote on the Norris proposed constitutional amendment to abolish the Electoral College.

Conferees on the stock market regulations and the air mail legislation plan to seek compromises between the house and senate this week. Some progress was made on the stock market bill last week, but conferees on the air mail legislation said they were deadlocked on the issue as to whether to make it temporary or permanent legislation.

The senate agricultural committee is scheduled to vote Monday on administration requested amendments to broaden the authority of the Agriculture Adjustment Administration. There is considerable opposition to the proposal in both branches and no move had been made toward action in the house.

Hearings on the administration's resolution empowering the president to stop the sale of arms in this country to Bolivia and Paraguay are to begin before the house foreign affairs committee Tuesday.

Hearings also will continue before a senate committee on the White House approved housing-unemployment relief bill.

Senators and representatives from drought stricken areas plan to ask for $800,000,000 for relief. They hope to attach it to the $1,322,000,000 public works-relief appropriation bill asked by the president last week. It is to be reported to the house this week by its appropriations committee.

Crime Bills Signed
WASHINGTON—(P)—A group of bills requested by the Department of Justice to aid the federal government in combating crime were signed Friday by President Roosevelt.

The measures passage of which was hastened by the activities of John Dillinger, the outlaw—provide federal penalties for offenses which heretofore had been curbed only by state law.

One bill provides that if a kidnapped person is kept seven days it automatically becomes a federal crime through a presumption that he was taken across a state line.

Other measures would classify as federal crimes officials or employees in prison breakouts, sending extortion messages in interstate commerce, fleeing across state lines to avoid prosecution or giving testimony in felony cases, fraud or robbery of national banks, assaulting or murdering a federal officer or employee in line of duty, and interstate transportation of stolen securities.

"There will be no relenting," said the president in signing the legislation.

These laws are a renewed challenge on the part of the federal government to interstate crime. Law enforcement and gangster extermination cannot be made completely effective so long as a substantial part of the public looks with tolerance upon known criminals, permits public offices to be corrupted or intimidated by them, or applauds efforts to romanize crime.

Already, the federal government, stretching to the full extent the latitude allowed under existing laws, has joined state officials in pursuing numerous kidnapping gangs and more recently in the unsuccessful efforts to bring Dillinger into custody.

Roosevelt Statement
"There will be no relenting," said the president.

"These laws are a renewed challenge on the part of the federal government to interstate crime. They are also complementary to the broader program designed to curb the evil doer of whatever class.

"In enacting them, the Congress has provided additional equipment for the Department of Justice to aid local authorities.

Lacking these new methods, the department already has tracked down many major outlaws and its vigilance has spread fear in the underworld.

"With additional resources, I am confident that it will make still greater inroads upon organized crime.

"I regard this action today as an event of the first importance. So far as the federal government is concerned, there will be no relenting.

"But there is one thing more. Law enforcement and gangster extermination cannot be made completely effective so long as a substantial part of the public looks with tolerance upon known criminals, permits public offices to be corrupted or intimidated by them, or applauds efforts to roman-

ize crime.

Already, the federal government, stretching to the full extent the latitude allowed under existing laws, has joined state officials in pursuing numerous kidnapping gangs and more recently in the unsuccessful efforts to bring Dillinger into custody.

VACCINE URGED

The increase in number of cases with the increase in age is very characteristic. It seems to be unusual for cattle in the United States to contract the disease when over two years old. The spring and fall are the seasons most favorable for the development of blackleg. The disease is not confined to the seasons, however, it appears at all times of the year with more or less frequency.

The most important characteristic of the disease is the development of a tumor of swelling under the skin. The swelling may appear on any part of the body or legs, except below the knee or hock joint and on the tail. It is frequently seen on the thigh or shoulder, and owing to the extensive discoloration of the swollen parts, as observed after the animal has been skinned, the disease has been popularly named "blackleg" or "black quarter." The cost per animal for serum to vaccinate is very small. For further instructions see the county agent.

Relief Colony to Be Set Up by U. S.

10,000-Acre Tract Will Be Cut Up in 20 and 40-Acre Farms

LITTLE ROCK—Negotiations were completed over the week-end to establish in Mississippi county the first of three relief colonies planned for Arkansas by the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, W. R. Dyess, state FEERA administrator, announced.

A tract of 10,000 acres, bisected by the Tryonza river in southern Mississippi county was purchased at an average price of $2.50 per acre, he said, from Lee Wilson & Co., Creamery Package Company and Drainage District No. 9.

He said that he had been offered $7,000 for timber rights, but had refused to sell as he intends to use the timber for construction of homes, barns and other buildings.

The tract will be divided into 20 and 40-acre plots upon which families taken from relief rolls will be placed. Persons placed there will be given the right of amortization extended over a period of five years. The sale will be made without profit to the FEERA and no interest will be charged.

A community center will be established in a convenient section in the tract and ample facilities will be available for school and religious activities.

The colony has no connection with the subsistence housing program, Mr. Dyess said. Other locations have not been selected yet, but it is expected one will be in the coal mining area. Four sawmills and 500 homes are expected to be constructed within the next 90 days.

The rural rehabilitation program is working effectively in all the counties, with 7,500 families accepted, Edgar A. Hodson, assistant FEERA administrator in charge, said yesterday.

A total of 7,765 men and women were at work in the state last Thursday on work divisions, R. C. Limerick, assistant administrator said. Approval of 563 projects in 17 eligible counties has been granted calling for the expenditure of $1,980,840.36.

The following table shows the project by counties:

County	Number Working	Amount
Craighead	242	$4,230.55
Crawford	167	30,084.40
Faulkner	189	62,483.30

Love
By Helen Welshimer
LOVE is a pretty dream, you say,
A theme that the poets sing,
Brief as the showers that fall in May,
Fleet as a bird on wing,
A fairy story that should be left
In the heart of a picture book;
A fantasy that one never finds
Though he run with a questing look.

YOU never have held a rainbow, dear,
Yet you have seen its glow,
On a summer's day when a storm is done,
Seventy times, I know!
Faith is the substance of things unseen,
We trust till the world's doors close.
When did you touch a star, a wind,
The fragrance that haunts a rose?

THE sea goes out with the ebbing tide,
The end of the stars brings dawn;
The cycle of seedtime and harvesting
Year after year goes on.
So surely your love will come to you,
In peace or to maddened drums,
For a heart must turn to another heart.
Hold to it when it comes!

Land Values Jump Over $2 Per Acre

Average Land Bank Price Advances from $17.02 to $19.40

WASHINGTON—(P)—Improvement in prices of farm property and a renewed interest in purchase of rural land were reported Sunday by the Farm Credit Administration.

During the first three months of this year, the average price of farms sold by Federal Land banks throughout the country increased from $17.02 per acre to $19.40 compared with the same period of 1933.

Reports from the 12 banks indicate, the administration said, that sales are being made principally to farmers living near the properties. Of 498 sales studied, 317 were to nearby farmers, 30 to farmers living 50 miles or more distant, 41 to nearby non-farmers, and 37 to non-farmers living at a considerable distance.

MOUNTAIN LION

at headquarters were with me, but they were busy and provided little companionship. When Paul returned from Eagle Pass I decided to go to the hacienda and spend a few days with Mark.

Lazaro Hernandez was Paul's jefe supremo at the hacienda. Lazaro was a grand old Mexican. At one time he had owned a ranch and was prosperous; but he supported the losing side of the revolution and the venture ruined him. When I knew him he was working for 50 pesos a month. Many times I heard the old fellow softly whistling selections from famous operas as he went about his duties. He spoke cultured Spanish and was very patient in correcting comical errors I was constantly making in my efforts to converse with him in his language.

Thomes and Pedro, two young fellows employed at the hacienda, usually accompanied me on my hunting expeditions. Invariably, there was a wrangle about who was to tote my gun. I think they became attached to me because I was liberal with cigarettes. They never asked for smokes, but be assured they never refused when one was offered.

As a hunter I was almost a complete washout. I saw two coyotes, several deer and a bobcat; but the biggest animal I bagged was a jackrabbit.

In a short time I began to miss the Chinaman's good cooking. Lazaro's culinary department wasn't anything to get excited over. So when I learned that several men were going to headquarters to assist in building goat sheds, I decided to accompany them.

We pulled out on Sunday morning in two farmwagons, 19 Mexicans and myself. We stopped at mid-way water hole for lunch, which consisted of goat meat stew, corn bread and coffee. A smart-aleck boy, Jose Ayala, picked up my shotgun and began to tinker with it without my knowledge. The gun went off and the bulk of the load blew a big hole through the tail of my overcoat. Two gray shot struck Pedro in the left heel. He was wearing sandals made from discarded automobile casings which afforded little protection. He sat down and calmly picked out the shot with the aid of a pocket knife. Nobody paid the slightest attention to poor Pedro; they were all concerned about me until they saw that I wasn't hurt.

That evening while the gang were sitting around a camp fire, they commenced to razz Jose about his carelessness with my gun. Jose resented it. Thomas and Pedro decided to work him over and almost killed the fool.

Early next morning Jose appeared at the commissary, his head tied up in dirty rags, and asked what money he had coming to him. After questioning him about the trouble, Paul paid him and he left the ranch afoot. That was the last I ever saw or heard of Jose.

OLD FOLKS LIKE THIS LAXATIVE

Tired, slow-functioning, eliminative organs need the "full" action, prompt, easy movement given by Feen-a-mint, the delightful-tasting chewing gum laxative that contains a laxative ingredient regularly prescribed by physicians. Old folks especially need modern Feen-a-mint, because, by chewing, the laxative is distributed uniformly into the system and thus does not shock, irritate, nor strain.

Prompt, thorough-acting Feen-a-mint, while pleasant to take, contains no richness to upset your stomach or diet. Work-hardened old folks like Feen-a-mint because its more modern action eliminates any necessity of experiencing that delay that starts poisons seeping into the system. "Delay" is dangerous—chew Feen-a-mint for constipation. 15c and 50c at druggists everywhere.

Romance has invaded the ranks of the Wampas baby stars, say Hollywood's ever-busy match-makers, and this time they declare Jacqueline Wells, one of the 1934 selections, is the girl in the case. She'll wed William Jauney, of stage and screen, they buzz. If it's true, the above picture shows Jauney has an eye for beauty.

Little June Hobles Home Safely, Is Greeted by Her Mother

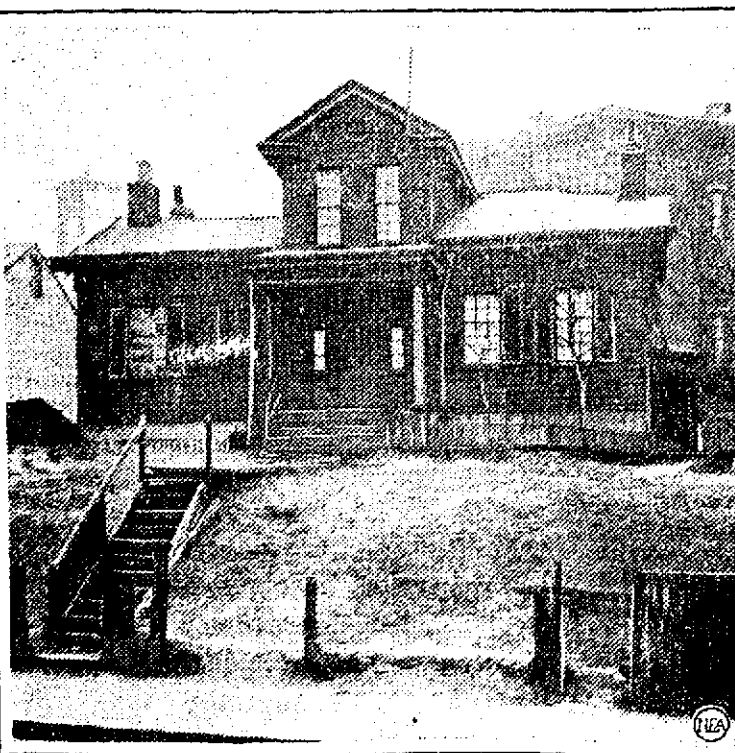

June Hobles, 6, victim of kidnapers who kept her imprisoned for 10 days in the blazing Arizona desert, is seen above as she drinks a cup of tea, her first nourishment at home after being rescued from a sandy grave. The other photo is a dramatic dramatization of Little June's return home. Her mother, Mrs. Fernando Robles, sobs brokenly as she kisses June. While others believed the kidnaped child dead, the mother never gave up hope.

Women Taken with Kidnapers

Referred to the People by the General Assembly in regular session assembled, 1933.

Be it resolved by the House of Representatives of the State of Arkansas and by the Senate of the State of Arkansas, a majority of all members elected to each House agreeing thereto:

That the following is hereby proposed as an Amendment to the Constitution of the State of Arkansas, and upon being submitted to the electors of the State for approval or rejection at the next general election for Senators and Representatives, if a majority of the electors voting thereon, of such an election adopt such Amendment, the same shall become a part of the Constitution of the State of Arkansas, to-wit:

That Article 5 of the Constitution of the State of Arkansas be amended by adding thereto the following:

SECTION I. Not less than a majority of the members of each House of the General Assembly may enact a law.

SECTION II. None of the rates for property, excise, privilege or persons taxes, now levied shall be increased after the approval of the qualified electors voting thereon at an election, or in case of an emergency, by the votes of three-fourths of the members elected to each House of the General Assembly.

SECTION III. Excepting monies raised or collected for educational purposes, highway purposes, to pay Confederate pensions and the just debts of the State, the General Assembly is hereby prohibited from appropriating or expending more than the sum of Two and One-half Million Dollars for all purposes, for any biennial period; provided the limit herein fixed may be exceeded by the votes of three-fourths of the members elected to each House of the General Assembly.

SECTION IV. In making appropriations for any biennial period, the General Assembly shall first pass the General Appropriation Bill provided for in Section 39 of Article 5 of the Constitution, and no other appropriation bill may be enacted before that shall have been done.

SECTION V. No expense shall be incurred or authorized for either House except by a bill duly passed by both Houses and approved by the Governor.

The provisions of the Constitution of the State of Arkansas in conflict with this Amendment are hereby repealed insofar as they are in conflict herewith, and this Amendment shall be self-executing and shall take effect immediately upon its adoption by the electors of the State.

The above resolution was filed in the office of the Secretary of State of the State of Arkansas on the 30th day of January, 1933.

Each elector may vote for, or against, the above proposed Amendment.

Burton-Ward Defeats the Storks 5 to 4 at Fair Park

Burton-Ward Grocers of Texarkana nosed out Hope Storks here Sunday afternoon, scoring one run in the final inning for a 5 to 4 decision at Fair Park.

The Storks took a lead at the start of the game and kept ahead, 3 to 1, until the seventh inning when Burton-Ward forged ahead with a three-run rally.

Hope tied the score in the eighth when C. Schooley walked. V. Schooley popped to third. B. Schooley forced brother Carroll at second, but Sparks followed with a hit and then Allen singled to bring home B. Schooley.

The grocers won the game in the ninth. Gordon singled, advancing to second on a sacrifice and then Goodwin smashed out a single to bring home the winning run.

The Storks threatened to tie the score in their half of the ninth, but excellent relief pitching by Huddleston saved the game for the visitors.

Madison allowed Burton-Ward nine hits. The Storks collected eight off Orr and Huddleston.

Prepare for Summer Hay Fever Attack

The spring type of hay fever appears to be prevalent about this time of the year, and although only about 5 per cent of the people of the United States seem to suffer from it, if you happen to be among them, let me advise you to prepare carefully for the more serious summer type.

The reason for this warning is that summer hay fever may occur among those suffering from the earlier form. Furthermore, because of its longer duration, the summer hay fever requires more precaution and medical attention than the shorter spring form.

Spring hay fever begins around April 15 and continues to the end of May. It is apparently due to a special sensitivity to pollen of maple, pine, oak, poplar and elm trees.

The later hay fever begins about the end of May to about July 20. It comes from sensitivity from pollen of the grasses, particularly of the orchard, the blue and the timothy varieties.

If you are a victim of summer hay fever you can attempt desensitization by injection of small doses of extracts of the pollens, beginning well in advance of the onset of the pollenation on the grasses.

In case of severe attack, you might

PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT NO. 20

Referred to the People by the General Assembly in regular session assembled, 1933.

Be it resolved by the Senate of the State of Arkansas and the House of Representatives of the State of Arkansas, a majority of all members elected to each House agreeing thereunto:

That the following is hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Arkansas, and, upon being submitted to the electors of the State for approval or rejection at the next general election for Senators and Representatives, if a majority of the electors voting thereon, at such an election adopt such amendment, the same shall become a part of the Constitution of the State of Arkansas, to-wit:

Except for the purpose of refunding the existing outstanding indebtedness of the State and for securing and refunding valid outstanding road improvement district bonds, the State of Arkansas shall issue no bonds or other evidence of indebtedness pledging the faith and credit of the State or any of its revenues for any purpose whatsoever, except by and with the consent of the majority of the qualified electors of the State voting on the question at a general election or at a special election called for that purpose.

This Amendment to the Constitution of Arkansas shall be self-executing and require no enabling act, but shall take and have full force and effect immediately upon its adoption by the electors of the State.

The above resolution was filed in the office of the Secretary of State of the State of Arkansas on the 30th day of January, 1933.

Each elector may vote for, or against, the above proposed amendment.

WITNESS MY HAND and Official seal of this office the 28th day of March, 1934.

ED F. McDONALD,
Secretary of State.

find he injection of certain drugs, such as adrenalin and ephedrine, of considerable value toward maintaining your comfort.

It has been rather well established that you can lessen the severity of an attack of hay fever by avoiding the pollens as much as possible and even cutting down the total dosage of pollen.

For this purpose filters have been developed for installation in your sleeping room. These will filter out the pollens and dust, and so frequently enable you to pass a more restful night.

During the height of the season, when the trees and grasses are pollinating, you should remain indoors as much as possible and you should certainly avoid trips in the country.

If you have to go out for an auto ride, see that all the windows of your car are closed, or the pollens will be thrown forcibly into your eyes and nose and set up a severe attack.

The itching, watering of the eyes, sneezing and difficult breathing, associated with severe forms of this condition, while not exceedingly serious from the point of view of being a menace to life, can nevertheless bring about such a discomfort as to make living exceedingly unpleasant.

Therefore, as a victim of hay fever, you should try to discover the kinds of pollens to which you are sensitive. Then you may not only attempt desensitization, but also observe the precautions I have mentioned.

Major Failure in Mid-West Crops

Spring Passing Without Rain, and Summer Normally Is Dry

CHICAGO—Another day of blistering heat and arid winds advanced disaster a step nearer to agriculturists of the middle west and reports over the week end showed that there was no immediate relief in sight.

Salvation of the farmer rests on scattering showers that would keep crops alive until general rains set in. But with the passing of each day, hope of general rain grows more dim, for the season is now approaching when little rain may be expected.

Not alone will the farmer suffer, but reduction of food supplies will be felt by every inhabitant of the country, experts pointed out. There is no danger of famine, it was admitted, but the shortage will result in advanced prices. Importation of some feedstuffs may become necessary.

The milk supply in the Chicago area has already become seriously affected by lack of forage. Dairy men are buying feeds at a time when their own farms should be producing ample forage.

Potatoes—food of the poor—threaten to become more scarce than at any other time in the history of the country. Garden produce is making no progress.

Wheat and corn, the two great food and money crops of the middle west and northwest, have reached a crisis. Kept alive by light showers since the planting season, the crops are literally drying up in the ground in many localities in the Dakotas, Minnesota, Nebraska, Iowa and Illinois.

The heat was terrific for the season, 100 degrees and more being reported in the Missouri and the upper Mississippi valleys. At Chicago 90 degrees was reached at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. A blistering dry wind from the southwest poured over the city. Bathing beaches were crowded.

Livestock will disappear from the prairies unless there is a sudden break in the drought, according to dispatches from western ranges.

Packing plants were prepared to receive shipments of cattle from the drought stricken areas.

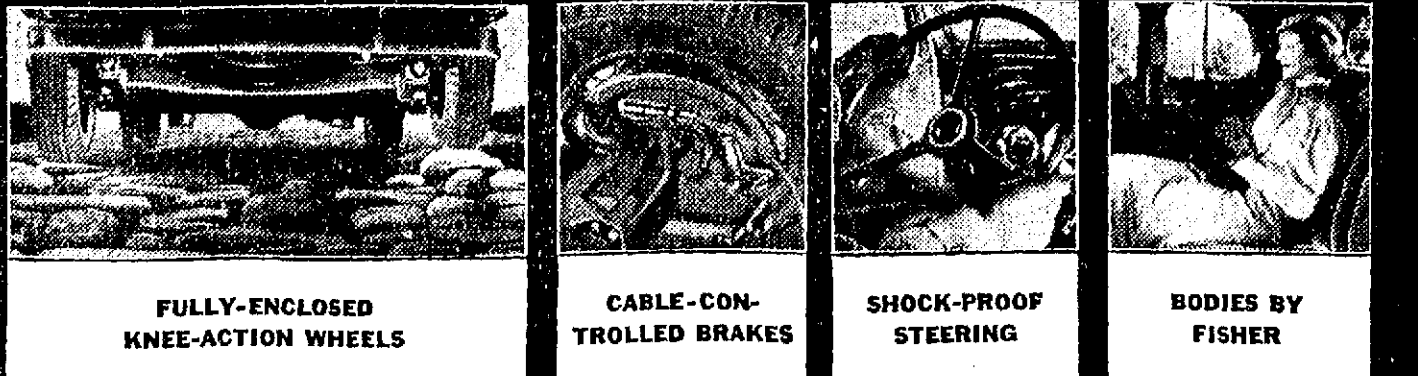

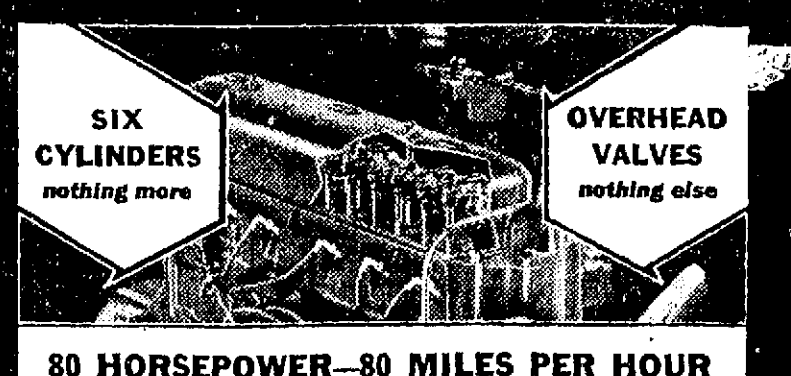

The United States is credited with ocean vessels aggregating more than 10 million gross tons, thus ranking second to Great Britain with 19 million tons.
